When cornets and trumpets first started being produced in 1929, they used a separate serial number sequence. It was said by plant super Don Agard (in a 2002 interview with Alan Rouse) that trombones maintained a separate sequence until January of 1954 when they reached 48000 and trumpets at 68000. At this point they were supposedly merged at 100000, but so far, this has proven difficult to confirm. Trumpet and cornet numbers go right up to 100000 without a break, yet only a few examples of trombones have been found. At this time, I am assuming that the serial numbers combined just after WWII and that they reached 100000 in 1954.

A large number of instruments listed here are from The Olds Register of trumpets and cornets which ended in 2009 and is preserved at Olds Central. The balance are from online auctions and private and public collections that I started adding in 2022.

Early trumpet and cornet serial numbers from 1929 until 1952 were compiled by Robb Stewart with input from R. Dale Olson, Alan Rouse, Eric Hamlin, and catalogs. These have been revised by Clay Collins of Olds-Central based on new information about production in the WWII era. Serial numbers from the mid-1950s on were supplied by Olds in the 1970s.

Early brass often had a bore size letter stamped on the middle valve casing. Following are examples that I have found.

S = small

SM = small/medium

M = medium = 0.453" for trumpets

M/SYM = slightly larger than M

LM = large medium

LLM = large large medium = medium bore through the tubing then a larger bell throat than the LM (c.1930 catalog)

SYM = Symphony bore = 0.462" for trumpets

After the introduction of the Ambassador line in 1948, about half of all instruments were this model until the end in 1979.

Instruments marked from "Elkhart" or other locations are not by Olds, but rather by various other companies after the name was sold in 1980 to the National Educator's Music Co. The first offerings were made by Schenkelaars in the Netherlands, then they switched to Blessing in Elkhart in 1988. By 2005, they were being made by Blessing and Amati. The current brass using the Olds name in 2019 are stencils from Amati or Asia.
